One Alfred Clark, of Lebanon, Ky. writes a letter to the Courier of this city, to prove that his father is dead, and that he is a poor young man. We honor Alfred for his candor as to the poverty. Honest poverty is noble, and we uncover before the oung man of "poor but honest parents. However, Alfred boasts that he has been mine years to two of the best colleges in Kentucky, and we suspect, from the elegant siyle of his letter, that he was a diligent aindent, and cultivated the graces of composition. He seems to think that our cor respondent has dragged "the moldering remains from the still, siles grave, to hang them at the murderer's gibbet." If Alfred soylum at Hopkinsville. is the fillel son he would have as believe, he will prevent the consummation of a dreadful a deed, although we are surprised at his assisting in the exhumation. The ot is, one of our creespondents did Alfred some tojustice, insdirertently we have no doubt, and that gentleman rushed to the defense wi h more ardor than discre tion, and more show of learning than wit. Alfred's pen is n t a mighty weapon, al though Alfred wa k p nine years "at I we of the best college; in Kentucky," learning how to wield it. In conclusion, we give Alfred's main d fense. He says his father does not live at Bardstown-has not been there for three or four years, and has been dead for more than a year. Conscquently, our correspondent's assertion that Alfred's revered parent lived there and was a sheemaker, is a mistake that we cheerfully porrect. Alfred finally asks the Courier

One o the clerks introduced his companion to be as Captain Eugene Foster, of the New Orleans and Cincinnati Packet Line. The Captain gallantly profered her a passage to New Orleans, and, as luck would have it he contemplated a visit there, and the evening to arrange for the shipment of her farniture. He called and made love to her, and was favorably received. For severs we he gladdened her heart by visiting her In the meantime he told his boon compan ions of his success, and they urged him t go shead, which he did to such an exter as to borrow $1,600 from the widow, whe he sloped. except for a few accidents. TERRIBLE ACCIDENTS .- The Bell Evere rchlight procession last night was the ause of some serious accidents. A wagon oad of fireworks at the corner of Thir ecuth and Jefferson streets, en route to in the procession, by some means wa xploded and the horses ran away. Several sons were in the vehicle. One man, soph Levi, an attachee of the steam fire engine Sargent, leaped out and fell so the the wheels passed over him, breaking four ribs in his right side, and fracturing h scull. He was taken home in an insensily

LOUISVILLE, NEW ALBANY AND CHICA RAILEGAU.—This road is now in a pro per-ous and flourishing condition, and its busi-ness is improving daily. A: different point-along the line large and convenion shops bave been erected, at which a large number of workmen are employed. There are be-tween two hundred and three hundred employed at the shops and depots in this city, and a great deal of work that has hereto-fore been manufactured to the East is now done here. We noticed to day in one of the shops a new engine uently completed.

It will be a very powerful and serviceable rowded, and within the last mouth has in parting from here daily, averaging from Wenty to thirty cars Yesterday ten cars, containing 120 hbds of tobacco, were shipped to Detroit, and to-day five hundred and thirty three bales of cotton were shipped to New York and Boston. A great deal of produce is arriving daily, and to rapid is its infinx it is with some difficulty hat it is hauled from the depot. The freight depot to day, besides a number of cars on the track, was literally crowded with treight discharged and ready for shipment. We are intry gial to witness such appropriately a size of the property and unmistakable signs of the prosperity and growth of our city in a commercial point of view, and for such our citizens are greatly indebted to the present management of the railroad -N. A. Ledger.
